Our Community Living Program

SJIC offers a comprehensive behavioral health community-based residential program for individuals with chronic behavioral, substance use, and general healthcare issues, by allowing the individual to live in the community while being treated. Our priority is to provide protective oversight and opportunities for people to live as independently as possible while receiving treatment. Our programs focus on symptom relief and managing feelings, which is delivered through our four tenets enmeshed from counseling, health care management, community integration, and service coordination. Our integrated healthcare model helps to develop skills enabling members to live independently with minimal support.

Sexual Maladaptive Adolescent Recovery Treatment (SMART)

SMART is a Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) program and is based upon principles of Social Learning theory, Motivational Interviewing (MI), Relapse Prevention and Criminal Thinking Errors, within the context of a comprehensive case management system.

Under the direction of Lee A. Underwood, Psy.D, a nationally recognized sex offender treatment provider and researcher, the SMART treatment approach has proven effective with juveniles with sexual behavior problems. Validity studies on the efficacy of the SMART program and present findings demonstrate preliminary reductions of deviant sexual fantasies, cognitive distortions, and negative mental health symptoms.
